

The Vietnam Supreme Adventure

A sophisticated approach to city life,
Daily activities, and the back streets of southeast Asia's most enigmatic country

The Ascending Dragon (Vietnam)

This customized itinerary features a variety of activities and venues in Vietnam and Thailand. Northern Vietnam features the memorable market streets of the 1,000-year old capital, Hanoi followed by the highland of Sapa with overnight train then the supernatural islands and coves of Halong Bay. From here we'll take an active and cerebral journey through the classic heritage sights of Hue and Hoi An, followed by the frenetic energy of the commercial hub of Saigon and the fun Vespa trip to Mui Ne. From Saigon we cross borders and fly to Thailand for one last night in Bangkok before flying home!

The pace is practical and is enhanced by paddling, cycling and multiple forms of transport throughout.

Day 1:
Hanoi Arrival and
Multi-Transport
Adventure Hanoi

Flight: TG560, Bangkok-Hanoi,

Meals: -

Church Boutique Hotel,

Deluxe Room (or higher)

Upon arrival in Vietnam, we'll meet you at the airport. Escort to your hotel, check in then enjoy the multi-transport adventure of the city! Hanoi is sometimes called the Paris of Asia. Grand colonial architecture, labyrinthine market streets and narrow lanes in the old quarter, Hanoi is an eye-popping experience. There are a couple great ways to get around, from cyclos to moto taxis. We'll hit a few of the must-see's with a flexible morning. While Hanoi has been the capital for 1,000 years and while there's plenty of history to be discussed, there are also a couple of essential experiences we need to get to right from the start: pho noodle soup and café sua da. Tonight enjoy dinner at your choice from one of the city's many great restaurants.

We know just the place!

Dinner Suggestion

Dinner is on your own tonight, but here are a couple of our favorite recommendations:

Day 2:
Hanoi B-Sides and Eat,
Drink Vietnam

Meals: B, L

Accommodation: Livitrans, Private Cabin

Train Schedule: Livitrans train leaves Hanoi at 8.20pm, arrive Lao Cai at 5.00am

Grilled meats, fresh seafood, tangy salads and a cornucopia of sesame, garlic, cilantro, chili and lime are just the starting point for one of Asia's darling cuisines. This morning we'll give an introduction to Vietnamese food and drink, the basic ingredients, various styles, and of course lots of sampling. Starting out on foot from our hotel in the old quarter, we'll make our way to Cho Long fresh market for a visual and sensory overload of ingredients, from spices to unusual fruit to livestock and a dazzling variety of herbs and vegetables. Sampling is key, and we make a couple stops at cafés to experience a few bedrock culinary experiences: spring rolls, salad wraps, and of course Vietnamese coffee, not necessarily in that order.

Next it is time to attempt to work up an appetite for lunch with a historical walking escapade around the old quarter, ranging from Hoan Kiem Lake through the maze of market streets, to crumbling shophouses and hidden pagodas. Less than the historical and cultural focus of yesterday, this is about visual and sensory experiences, and soaking up the essence of Hanoi.

Lunch – a treat of local specialties, with the locals. Vermicelli noodles with a fantastic grilled pork roll broth and herbs, fresh garlic and chilies. We'll stretch out the walk, even tuck into the Hanoi Hilton for a peak, and then let loose on simply outstanding local cuisine. Afternoon is free – for shopping, spa, or a nap of course. There is plenty of food still to find in the capital.

Tonight, we will take an overnight train from Hanoi to Lo Cai then have a short transfer to Sapa in the morning.
